BACKGROUND

The workshop on Finance and Investment in Africa is a foundation program developed to provide middle to high level officials with an overview of the increasingly important area of investment for development.

Investment facilitation encapsulates a broad array of topics for consideration; from aspects on the financial modalities of investment to business certification and standards of protection, sound facilitation represents the formation of a mutually beneficial architecture for increased commercial integration and expansion.

With a wealth of natural resources and a burgeoning consumer base, Africa must seek to both provide the products and services sought by its population whilst also ensuring a commercial environment that is conducive to business formation and growth.

For those in the ‘frontier markets’ of sub-Saharan Africa, the securing of foreign trade can provide domestic markets with cheap alternatives whilst also offering many enterprises an opportunity to engage in international commerce, at some level. Accordingly, increased levels of investment in Africa can offer numerous potentials both for investors and indigenous markets.

This workshop, which is financed by the Arab Bank for Development in Africa \(BADEA\), looks to elucidate these business potentials, offer understanding on the need for legal & regulatory protections – both for the benefit of businesses and indigenous populations – and examine the policies by which an optimum business environment may be cultivated, to best attract sound investment.
