BACKGROUND

Due to rapid globalization, citizens of each nation are interconnected with each other more than any time before. We are citizens of respective nations, but also global citizens who face the same challenges of the world.

While understanding the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), it is expected that the youth of Korea understands the significance of sustainable community and the responsibility of the youth. By acknowledgement of responsibility of the youth, we can put the efforts to build sustainable world along with each other.

In this sense, the event will offer lectures and field visits for participants to understand the relations between sustainable community and responsibility of the youth in terms of contributing to advance the SDGs. This event will help Korean university students to enhance their understanding on SDGs and their responsibilities.
