The United Nations Institute for Training and Research (UNITAR) was established in 1965 as an autonomous body within the United Nations with the purpose of enhancing the effectiveness of the work of the UN and its Member States.

In 2024, UNITAR reached close to 560,000 learners and other beneficiaries worldwide, with 68 per cent participating in structured learning activities such as e-learning, workshops and executive and professional exchange programmes. Participants include diplomats, government officials, representatives of international and regional organizations, civil society, academia and other stakeholders.

At the heart of UNITAR’s mandate is the delivery of high-quality training and capacity-building activities that equip international actors with the practical knowledge and skills needed to navigate the multilateral system. These activities cover a wide range of domains, including training on the UN system, multilateral negotiation, leadership, and overall skills development.

UNITAR designed a 5-day field visit to New York, offering participants a full immersion into the United Nations' multilateral working environment.

In line with UNITAR’s mandate, its main purpose is to enhance participants’ knowledge and skills in the area of international affairs and diplomacy. This will empower them to work more effectively and efficiently in any multilateral setting.

UNITAR further intends to strengthen the participants’ conviction of the principles enshrined in the UN Charter, especially multilateralism. It lastly aspires to give its participants the opportunity to gain valuable insights into possible future career steps.
