It is up to the new generation to find innovative solutions and contribute to the future well-being of humanity. The cornerstone of this is a global spirit of international cooperation based on the exchange of ideas. In our globalized world, English has emerged as the most commonly spoken language, with a total of 1.3 billion English speakers worldwide. Improving English language skills is, therefore, a key necessity for intercultural dialogue.

Therefore, Education First (EF) and UNITAR have joined forces to offer an English language learning programme for students and young adults in French-speaking Switzerland. The programme will not only provide participants with in-depth English language training in the prestigious halls of the Palais des Nations but also give them first-hand experience of the multifaceted workings of the United Nations. In doing so, participants will gain the skills needed to provide the innovative solutions of tomorrow.

The goal of the programme is to provide participants with the skills necessary to impact the world of tomorrow. English will be in the foreseeable future the most widely spoken language in the world. In order to facilitate global change, communication and the exchange of ideas is of the essence. At the end of the intensive English language course, participants should have considerably improved their English skills and gained valuable insights into the multifaceted workings of the United Nations.

The Education First-United Nations programme is held in Geneva in the Palais des Nations and consists of a one-week face-to-face English language course for French-speaking Swiss students and young adults. The courses are taught by Education First's French-speaking English teachers. Modules on the functioning of the United Nations will be provided by UNITAR.
